

BRIDES

15 Culinary-Focused Honeymoons for Foodies

You survived the pre-wedding diet—now enjoy!

By Kathryn Rosemary | Published on September 29, 2018

The Ritz Carlton, San Francisco, California

The new Palate to Plate package (from $2,839) is for discerning and dedicated epicureans. Tailored to each couple, it comprises a customized journey through the historic hotel and iconic SF food destinations that are tailored to your food preferences based on a pre-arrival palate profiling experience with the chef. There's also a wine tasting featuring pours from legendary winemaker Jean-Charles Boisset's rare reserve collection, Cristal champagne toast, and a private personalized Chef's Table dinner in Parallel 37.

They say the way to a man's heart is through his stomach, but for die-hard foodies it certainly goes both ways. There's no better time to indulge—like, really indulge—than in the days after you've taken off the perfectly-fitted gown and corset or Spanx. Because as much as a beach vacation is what you want after agonizing over all the little details for months, it's also important during this time to eat and drink all the things you've been withholding from yourself—and discover delicious new obsessions. These destinations celebrate the culinary arts in a serious way, and many come with the opportunity to pick up some skills to take home as the ultimate souvenir, that way your man has no excuse for not cooking you a fabulous dinner on a moment's notice.